

Outdoor learning in Strandtown

March 2021

Dear parents and children,

Signs of Spring from one of our school gardens! Tulips emerging and daffodils swaying in the breeze create a feeling of hope as we look forward to returning together soon!

We celebrated World Book Day together virtually on 4th March and the teachers were delighted to receive wonderful photos of your EXTREME reading spots. It was fabulous to see lots of us enjoying our favourite books in the great outdoors!

We are incredibly proud of your wonderful home learning efforts and loved receiving photos of you getting out for exercise as this is really important too! Healthy Body, Healthy Mind!

Plea for help and expertise!

We will be receiving some wooden pallets next week and would love to create some mud kitchens, bird tables and planters for our Forest School site. If you think you could donate some time and carpentry, please get in touch!

How wonderful it would be on our return to get outdoors and feed the birds, explore the natural surroundings of our school and learn together outside.

“Nature breeds curiosity; it helps to grow explorers rather than robots. It reminds us that we are part of something bigger. It grounds us, calms us.” Ben Palmer-Fry

Check out the NIFSA Facebook page for daily outdoor activity ideas.

Many thanks,
R McCoy